Strides and Strains of Civil Society Organizations in West Africa is the story of WANEP’s seventeen years of peacebuilding practice in West Africa. This story would not have been possible without the vision of the co-founders; Sam G. Doe and Emmanuel H. Bombande and all those (institutions and individuals) who supported the dream and gave it meaning. The dream is today translated into a household name in peace and security in Africa with over 100 staff and 550 members across the region.
